PREFACE.

"Few families in the country have been more celebrated than the Cushings, and probably no other one has furnished more Judges for our Probate, Municipal, and Supreme Courts. In all its branches it has been highly respectable, and it still maintains its ancient standing."—History of Hanover, Mass., by J. S. Barry, Boston, 1853. High praise, but by no means undeserved, as the merest glance down the "bead roll of fame," as imperfectly transcribed in this work, will convince the most sceptical. The Genealogy of the Cushing Family forms of itself almost a synopsis of the colonizing and early settlement of the New England States and a portion at least of the Province of Quebec. and by that best and purest of its stock, the Puritans. Here we read, as in a history, the mode of settlement; the organization of local and general offices for the proper and regular administration, civil and military, of the affairs of the colonies; the origin of the causes which led to the memorable struggle for Independence of the British Colonies in America; the difficulties to be contended with in the re-organization of the affairs of the young nation, its laws and government. In the halls of the Legislature, in the administration of the laws, in the arena of commerce and in all the religious controversies of the times in which they lived, the members of this remarkable family appear almost pre-eminent.

The scrupulous accuracy with which the Pilgrim Fathers recorded the births and marriages of the colonists, makes it a matter of no great difficulty in tracing the descendants of the early settlers down to at least the middle of the eighteenth century; and from the exceptionally prominent part taken in all public matters by members of this family, their descent can be traced by nearly if not all of the name to the present day. The work now sent forth is, for aught the author knows, the first issued with any pretensions to a general genealogical record. It is necessarily incomplete in many of its details, and many precious fragments remain in his hands, for lack of the necessary links to connect them with the rest of the chain.

Some explanation is due for the appearance of this work in such small type and the unnecessary crowding of some of the families together. The original intention of the compiler had been simply to print in order, for his own personal convenience, a voluminous mass of manuscript memoranda, the result of several years desultory collection. The work assumed such proportions, that he was induced to expend considerable extra efforts to ensure such completeness as might be possible, without attempting to have any alteration of the type originally selected, and in which the greater portion had already been set up. Of the many who have rendered valuable assistance, special mention must be made of Daniel Cushing, Esq., of Lowell, Mass.; Chas. W. Cushing, Esq., of South Hingham (who kindly furnished copies of the Hingham and Scituate Records) and Hon. Theophilus H. Cushing, of Winterport, Me. The "Willis collection" of the Portland, Me., Public Library, and the invaluable Library of "The New England Historical and Genealogical Society," of Boston, have furnished much valuable information, and a list of the principal works to which reference was thus had is appended.

INTRODUCTION.

THE earliest authentic record of the Cushing Family, from which an unbroken descent can be traced, is found in several Deeds and Charters, bearing date from 1466 to 1480, which are now in possession of the Steward of the Manors therein named in Hardingham and Hingham, (County of Norfolk, England,) which at that time and for several generations belonged to the family.

Some explanations and information respecting the name, arms, &c., and of the heraldic terms used in describing the latter, will not be amiss, particularly to those who may not have within reach any one of the many works on the subject.

NAME.

The name spelled Cusheyn and otherwise is found prior to the year 1400, and in the "Ulster Journal of Archæ." No. 2, there is the following v. Cushion, "(County Limerick and elsewhere,) a corruption of MacOssian. It is otherwise written Cushin and Cussen and Anglicized to Cousins, but pronounced Cuzzeen."

Among the New England Records the name is variously spelled "Cushin," "Cushan" and "Cushing." In a "List of First settlers of New England," by S. G. Drake, is found the name "Jeremiah Cushin, Boston, juror, 1680," and among the signatures to a certificate dated Hingham, the 7 February, 1798-9, to the righteous life and character of one Mehetabel Warren, of Plymouth, accused of witchcraft, are found the following:—"Daniel Cushing," "Elizabeth Cushing," "Matthew Cushing," "Deborah Cushing," "Theo. Cushing."

ARMS AND HERALDIC TERMS.

Arms were originally assumed as military ensigns, and the greater nobility occasionally granted badges resembling or remodelled from them to their dependents. Armorial ensigns were frequently assigned by the Crown to such as were gentlemen of blood and had signalized themselves in tournament or battle.

Arms were no sooner esteemed as incontrovertible evidence of honor and blood, than applications to the Crown for grants of arms became so constant that the King appointed two Provincial Kings of arms to grant ensigns armorial within their respective provinces, under the authority of the Earl Marshal. An ordinance or proclamation was issued during the reign of Henry V. inhibiting or forbidding the bearing of arms by any not duly authorized so to do, but, in total disregard of this royal ordinance, a multiplicity of abuses, irregularities and disorders were found to have crept into all matters appertaining to descent and arms, in consequence whereof commissions were issued under the Great Seal to the two Provincial Kings of Arms, authorizing and commanding each by himself or his deputy to visit the whole of his province as often as he should deem it necessary; to convene before him all those who bore, or assumed to bear arms and were styled esquires and gentlemen, and to cause them to produce and show by what authority and right they challenged and claimed the said use of arms. In pursuance of this royal commission, the circuits of the Kings of Arms, called VISITATIONS, commenced about the beginning of the sixteenth century. The Visitations occurred once about every thirty years. The Heralds' Visitations are preserved as a book of record, and those who are enabled to deduce descent from an ancestor whose armorial ensigns have been acknowledged in any of the Visitations are entitled to carry those arms by right of inheritance.

BURKE'S "General Armory."

The Shield is distinguished by certain armorial colors called TINCTURES, separated by division lines and charged with a variety of animals, which themselves bear the designation of charges. The TINCTURES used in heraldry are metals, colors and furs.

Of the metals, or means gold, and known in uncolored drawings and engravings by dots or points.

Of the colors, azure means blue, and is depicted by horizontal lines; sable means black, and is depicted by cross lines, horizontal and perpendicular; Gules means red, and is depicted by perpendicular lines.

The term QUARTERLY means the field or charge divided into four equal parts by two lines, one perpendicular, the other horizontal.

The BEND is formed by two lines drawn diagonally from left to right, and comprises the third part of the shield. It represents a shoulder belt or scarf.

The CANTON, derived from cantonnée, cornered, is less than the quarter, comprising only the third part of the chief, and is formed by a perpendicular line drawn from the top of the shield meeting another drawn horizontally from the side. The Canton always occupies the upper left hand corner of the escutcheon, unless otherwise expressed.

CHEQUE or CHEQUY is used when the field or any armorial charge is divided by transverse lines, perpendicularly and horizontally, into equal parts or squares alternately of different tinctures like a chess-board. On ordinaries chequy must consist of at least three ranges of square pieces.

Birds, when spread open, with both wings stretched out and their breasts seen, are said to be displayed.

Gamb, the whole foreleg of a lion or other beast; if couped or erased near the middle joint, it is then only a paw.

BURKE'S "General Armory."

"By an 'heiress' is not necessarily implied an inheritrix of landed or other property. A lady is an heiress when she is the sole issue of any gentleman bearing arms, and Co-heiress (which in Heraldry is equivalent to Heiress), when she has other sisters, but no brother."

"Handbook of Heraldry," by JOHN E. CUSSANS.

CUSHING ARMS.

The Cushing Arms are first found in the Heraldic Visitation of the County of Norfolk, England, made in the year 1563, in which the marriage is given of John Oldham of Shimpling, Norfolk, with Elizabeth, (stated to be daughter and heir of Francis Cushin, of Hingham, Norfolk,*) and are described as follows:

"Gules, an eagle displayed argent quartering gules, three right hands torn from the wrists, a canton chequery, or and az."

* There is not a single date in the pedigree, but as no issue of the marriage is mentioned it was probably not long before that date. The "Francis Cushin" mentioned was doubtless the great grandson of John III. in the line of his eldest son John. (See Genealogy.)

In "Fairbairn's Crests of Great Britain and Ireland," vo. Cussans or Cussions, there appears the following: An eagle displayed, gu., armed and langued, az., (on breast a bend, ar., charged with three fleur-de-lis, sa) Dum spiro spero.

BURKE, in his "General Armory of England, Scotland and Ireland," says v. Cussans, "(Jamaica; granted 1767) or, an eagle displayed gu. in chief, two barrulets az., CREST. An eagle displayed, gu., charged on the breast with a bend ar. thereon three fleurs-de-lis sa."

The "Heraldic Journal," No. 1, Jan. 1865, has the following description of the Cushing Arms and Crest, which is the one found in what is known as "The Gore Roll of Arms" being a collection of the Arms of New England Families made during the last century, supposed to be by Samuel Gore, and previous to 1750.

'Arms—Quarterly 1 and 4, an eagle displayed 2 and 3, two dexter hands, open, coupé, a canton chequy. Crest—two bear's paws, holding a ducal coronet, from which is suspended a heart."

In the Appendix to "Copp's Hill Burial Grounds," by J. S. Loring, the following is given as the Arms of the Cushing family:

"Quarterly gu. and an Eagle argent, gules, three right hands somewhat torn, a canton chequy or and az 1563."

CRESTS AND MOTTOES.

Crests may be assumed by all who consider themselves entitled legally to bear arms.

Mottoes may be taken, changed, varied or relinquished as often as the bearer thinks fit; and may, with impunity to the assumer, be the same as is used by other families.

"Introduction to Heraldry," by HUGH CLARKE.

"Mottoes are not strictly hereditary. An individual is at liberty to affix to his escutcheon whatever motto his fancy may dictate."

"Handbook of Heraldry," by JOHN E. CUSSANS.

CUSHING CREST.

A crown supported by two gambs, from which is suspended a heart resting on a wreath and helmet.

The motto virtute et numine (by valor and divine aid,) appears to be the only one adopted by any of the members of the Cushing family.

AMERICAN AND CANADIAN DESCENDANTS.

VI. MATTHEW CUSHING, 3rd child of Peter and Susan Hawes. Married 5 August 1613, Nazareth, daughter of Henry Pitcher, with whom and his children, and his wife's sister, (Widow Francis Ricroft, who died a few weeks after their arrival) he embarked in the ship Diligent of Ipswich, 350 tons, John Martin, master, which sailed from Gravesend, 26 April 1638, with 133 passengers, among whom was Robert Peck, M.A., Rector of the Parish of Hingham, England, entered on the list of passengers as "teacher," and arrived at Boston, Mass., 10 August 1638.* He and his fellow-passengers the same year commenced the settlement of Hingham, Mass., which they named after the name of the former home of the Cushing family in England. At a town meeting held 1638, a house lot of 5 acres was given to him. This lot has ever since remained and now (1877) is in possession of his direct lineal descendants. He became a deacon of Rev. Peter Hobart's church and died 30 September 1660, æ 72, leaving a Will. His wife died 1 Jan. 1681, æ 96. 2. JEREMIAH, baptized 21 July 1621. Became a mariner of Boston, Mass., and was lost at sea. Married 11 March 1662, Elizabeth, widow of John Wilkie. In her will she makes mention of her daughter Elizabeth Condry,

* It is asserted that during this year (1638), no less than 20 ships, conveying 3,000 passengers, came over to New England. Some attempt was made to prevent their leaving, and one squadron at least was for a time detained in the Thames. It is even asserted that Cromwell himself was on board one of the vessels intending to cross to the new world, but this assertion is discredited by some authorities.

- and grandson Jeremiah Condry, and sister Martha Muzer, in Redrif, near London.
3. MATTHEW, (styled "Lieutenant,") baptized 5 April 1623. Freeman 1679.* Married 25 February 1653, Sarah, daughter of Nicholas Jacob and died 9 Jan. 1701 without issue. The Town of Hingham made him a grant of land in 1664. In his will he mentions his brothers and most of his relatives. His wife made her will 1701 and mentions most of her relatives. She died 8 Aug. 1701.
 4. DEBORAH, baptized 17 Feb. 1625. M. 9 May 1648, Matthew Bridgges (Rev. Peter Hobart's Journal) or Matthias Briggs (Dean's Hist. of Scituate.)
 5. JOHN, b. 1627.

* Under the first Charter of the Mass. Colony, none were regarded as Freemen or Members of the body politic, except such as were admitted by the General Court and took the Freeman's oath, by which every Freeman was obliged to pledge his allegiance not to King Charles, but to Massachusetts. This custom continued in existence until by the second Charter the Colony was transformed into a Province. The signatures are not autographs, but they were written by the Secretary according to the sound as the names were pronounced to him.

Under date 15 May 1672, the name "Dani. Cushin" (Daniel VII) is found.

She died 24 Nov. 1725, æ 92, surviving her husband twenty-five years. He died 3 December 1699, æ 81. He left a full and minute will, dated 11 Sept. 1693, a copy of which may be found, in the N.E. Hist. Gen. Register, vol. xiv, p. 293. A lot of land was granted to him by the Town of Hingham in 1665. He became a Freeman in 1671, was an active magistrate, and for many years Town Clerk of Hingham and by the faithful discharge of the duties of this last office rendered invaluable service to the modern antiquary. In the years 1681, 1682 and 1695, he was Representative to the General Court. Two of his memorandum books, containing many entries of much local value, are in the possession of Solomon Lincoln, Esq., of Hingham.

He was one of the six lawyers in Maine who were raised to the degree of Barrister.* He was for a time Attorney General of Mass.; in 1768, was appointed the first Judge of Probate in Lincoln County, and in 1772 made Judge of the Superior Court. At the re-organization of the Superior Court, Mass., 1777, he was appointed Chief Justice of the Court, the first who held the office under the free Government of the Commonwealth and labored with great success in establishing the Judicial system on a firm basis. He became Judge of the Supreme Judicial Court, 1782. At the beginning of the Revolution, he alone, among the high in office supported the rights of the Revolutionists. He was the first Chief Justice of the State under the Constitution of 1783, and at the organization of the U. S. Government in 1789 he was selected by Washington as an Associate Justice of the United States Supreme Court, in which office he eminently shone. While Associate Judge, he was accompanied in his circuit by Mrs. Cushing; he drove a phaeton and a pair of horses and was followed by his negro man "Prince" on horseback. During the mission of Chief Justice John Jay, Envoy Extraordinary to the Court of Great Britain, negotiating the famous treaty with that Country, Judge Cushing presided, and as senior Justice administered the oath of office to Washington at the beginning of his second term as President, 4 March 1793. In 1796, after Judge Jay's resignation, he was nominated by Washington to the Chief Justice's office and this offer was unanimously confirmed by the Senate. Nothing but a confidence in his ability and in his unshaken integrity could have united contending parties on that occasion; but notwithstanding this extraordinary expression of confidence, he declined the office on account of infirm health, but continued on the bench until 1810, when he had prepared an instrument of resignation, but was called to resign life. He was a man of tall and dignified presence, and as he moved along the streets with his cocked hat, bush wig and small clothes, he made an imposing appearance which attracted general attention. He was the last Chief Justice who wore the large wig of the English Judges. His oratory was ready and flowing, not of that overawing description with which some native orators of more fiery mould have transported audiences, but its excellence consisted in cool deliberate judgment and logical and lucid argumentation which gave him eventually an advantage over those of more ardent temperament. He had a felicity of manner and an unblemished dignity of character which enabled him to be open and decisive without kindling the rage of opposition. As a Judge he was eminently qualified by his learning and not less by his unshaken integrity and deliberate temper. It is said of him in 1801, that he performed the duties of his high office with order and perspicuity and guided the bar with mild, though commanding dignity. In private life he was all that was amiable, always ready to instruct by useful discourse and to make his friends happy by his cheerfulness. He diligently collected works of taste and (if we may judge by the numerous notes written with his own hand in margins) he read with the greatest care. In 1788 he was Vice-President of the Mass. Convention; was a founder and member of the American Academy of Arts and Sciences. He was a learned theologian, well acquainted with the controversies of the day and though far from gathering heat in those controversies, was conspicuously on the side of liberal Christianity. As an exemplary Christian, he was irreproachable, and as a public character, he is universally acknowledged to have stood in the first rank of his countrymen, with Washington and Adams and Henry and Jefferson, either in times of awful hazard or in times of those prodigious civil labors which laid the foundations of the country's policy.

* In England, no person could be admitted a barrister, unless he had resided three years in one of the Inns of Court, if a graduate of Cambridge or Oxford, and five years if not such graduate.

By papers left by him it appears that he was well established in business as early as 1741, as a furrier and hatter. Among these papers are found also, letters and bills from the Hon. Philip Livingston and others, showing that he had an extensive correspondence in relation to the fur business. From the year 1750 to the commencement of the Revolution, he was engaged in sending furs to England. Some time previous to and during the Revolution, he, with two others, owned a vessel which they chartered to parties as a coaster; it made several trips to Nantucket. IX. THOMAS CUSHING, son of Thomas and Deborah. H.C., 1711 (1714 ?) Was Representative from Boston to the General Court in 1731, and Speaker, 1742-1746. He died 11 April 1746. Married 4 July 1724, Mary, daughter of Hon. Edward Bromfield of Boston, who was born 9 June 1689. She died 30 October 1743. Mr. Cushing was a merchant of Boston, and was frequently chosen moderator of their famous town meetings and was moderator of the town meeting 3 September 1742 when Boston voted thanks to Peter Faneuil, Esq., for the gift of the Market House and Town Hall. He was a member of the Old South Church, then under the pastorate of the immortal Thomas Prince, who in his funeral discourse says of him: "I found that in a small, relaxed and feeble body, dwelt a great, a lively, a strong and well composed soul."

Children :

1. THOMAS, (H. C., 1744, LL.D. 1785), b. 24 March 1725 married 1 Oct. 1747, Deborah Fletcher, died 28 Feb. 1788. He was Representative to the General Court in 1761, re-elected in 1762 and up to 1769 inclusive; was elected Speaker of the General Court 26 May 1768, and rose to higher honors in the State than either his father or grandfather. On 18 December 1765, he was appointed with others a Committee to sign and present a Memorial to the Governor in Council, protesting against the shutting up of the Courts of Law and other infringements upon the liberties of the people. He was friend and co-worker in the patriot cause with Adams, Otis and Warren. When Otis who had been chosen speaker was negatived by the government [in 1764], he was elected in his place, filling it until 1774, when he was a member of the Provincial Congress, and of the Congress which met at Philadelphia. On his return he was elected to the Council; was Commissary-general from 1775 to 1779 [see interesting letter from him to John Hancock, dated Watertown, 3, May 1776, to be found in Historical Magazine, Boston, 1860, p. 345]; Judge of the Court of Common Pleas, and of Probate, in Suffolk Co. in 1777; declined a seat in the Continental Congress, in 1779, and was Lieut.-Governor of Mass. under Hancock and Bowdoin, from 1779 until his death, and Acting Governor in 1785. His signature being affixed to all public papers, as speaker of the House, caused him to be regarded in Great Britain as the leader of the Whigs in this country. In Dr. Johnson's pamphlet "Taxation no Tyranny" one object of the Americans is said to be "to adorn the brows of Mr. Cushing with a diadem." He was the devoted friend and counsellor of Hancock, and the friend and correspondent of Franklin, from whom he received the letters of Hutchinson and others, that produced so great effect at that time. He was a Commissioner of the Society in London, for Propagating the Gospel in New England, and one of the founders of the American Academy of Arts and Sciences. He was moderate and conciliatory in character, his good sense and sound judgment, the urbanity of his manners, his universal good character, his numerous friends and connections and his continual intercourse with all sorts of people, added to his constant attachment to the liberties of his country gave him great and salutary influence from the beginning, in 1769.

He was bred to the law and appointed first Sheriff of Lincoln Co. which office he held both before and during the Revolution, as also for many years after. He resided at Pownalboro' and in 1776, when the Maine Militia was re-organized, was appointed to command the Eastern Regiment, with the title of "Colonel." He made himself especially obnoxious to the loyalists by his vigilance in the discharge of his duties as sheriff and military officer, and towards the close of the war, in 1781, he (then a Brigadier General) was seized at night by a loyalist party under John Jones, a violent Tory, taken from his bed, compelled to hurry on his clothes and was carried away to the British Army at Castine, where he was retained for sometime as a prisoner. His functions as Sheriff and Brigadier General seem to have ceased soon after this time when he removed to Boston and he next appears as Clerk of the Courts in Suffolk and Nantucket Counties (Supreme Court?) in 1783, which office he held to his death, 17 Nov. 1810. The fact of his occupying responsible public stations from the age of 26 to his death continuously, both under the royal and republican governments, a period of 50 years, is sufficient proof of his ability, faithfulness and integrity. He was a gentleman worthy of his distinguished ancestors. His wife died 31 May 1817.

Representative from 1773-75 and for 1878-79, also Town Clerk from 1774-78. He was one of the most valuable citizens of the Town in his day, distinguished for his unbending integrity and affable deportment; held an honorable rank in the Conventions of the County and Congresses of the Province. In the Records of Hanover, we read that "Capt. Joseph Cushing" was among the Representatives from Hanover to the great meeting held 26 September 1774, at Plympton, of Delegates from every town in Plimouth Co. At this Congress, Nathan and Joseph Cushing were of a Committee to draft resolutions and remonstrances against the encroachments of the Parliament and King, which resolutions were unanimously adopted; and on the Journals of the three first Provincial Congresses, held in Salem, Concord, Cambridge and Watertown, in 1774-75, there is mentioned as a delegate, a "Col. Cushing," who took an active and prominent part in all the proceedings. A "Joseph Cushing" was on the Committee of Correspondence and Safety, of Hanover, for 1776-7 and 9. In 1777, there was a Regiment styled "Col. Cushing's Regiment," which arrived at Bennington soon after the battle at that place, and one company at least, reached Bennis Heights on the day of the battle at that place. All these references are doubtless, connected with this Joseph. At a still later period when peace had been declared and order restored, he was appointed Judge of Probate for the County of Plymouth. He was Capt. of the 1 Mass. Regiment and Sub-Inspector to the 1 Mass. Brigade for the years 1781-2, and held the rank of Brigadier General.

In 1798, he removed with his family to Lower Canada in consequence of an offer from the Government, of twelve hundred acres of land a piece, to actual settlers, and settled in the Township of Shipton, where Richmond now is. It was then an unbroken wilderness and they went from Montreal up the St. Francis River in birch bark canoes conducted by Indians, arriving at their destination after five days weary travel, 24 May 1798, and occupied a little shanty until August, by which time he had a more comfortable dwelling prepared. During that year he cleared twenty-four acres on lot 16, in the 14th Range. The Charter of the Township was delayed four years from the commencement of the settlement, owing to the inability of the settlers to fulfil all the conditions, but was finally granted in December 1801, by Governor Prescott, to Elmer Cushing and forty-six associates. In 1802 he erected both a grist mill and saw mill, which were replaced in 1808 by more substantial ones; the irons for them were obtained in Vermont and part of them brought through Lake Champlain down the Richelieu and St. Lawrence and up the St. Francis in canoes; and a part drawn on hand sleighs from Dudswell, by his son Prentice, then a lad of sixteen. The first school in the new Township or Settlement was taught in his house by Miss Kimball and mostly confined to his family. In 1804 he removed with his family, to Three Rivers, whence in 1814 he moved to Montreal where he died 21 January 1821, æ. 56.
